

As the CEO of The Mahoney Group, I am always searching for better and more effective ways to help my corporate clients manage their liabilities and their risks. It is more critical now than ever that we provide new and innovative answers to emerging risks that clients are encountering.

After reviewing our own corporate risks, we found that improving the health, productivity and the retention of our employees was one of the biggest liabilities that we faced as a company. We also know we are not alone in this situation...most companies are facing the very same situation. Chronic illness and its consequences are becoming monumental issues and severely impacting Corporate America's bottom line.

As we reviewed the landscape of the current choices of the so-called "corporate wellness" programs out there, we found them to be severely lacking in their effectiveness. Most included health fairs and employee educational and awareness programs that were toothless and much too passive. We felt there needed to be a much stronger emphasis on actually making a difference in the lives of our employees. We wanted real and tangible results that actually provided the tools for our employees to retain the benefits for a lifetime. We wanted to make sure our own house was in order, so to speak.

That is why we sought out Prolean Corporate Wellness. Prolean has a proven track record in the industry of providing specific and highly customized wellness programs that have the ability to show significant results and provide the tools for lasting results. Our employees who have participated in the program have had very positive results. To that point, the AVERAGE fat lost amongst our employees has been over 25% and the best part is that they typically greatly reduce or eliminate their diabetic and hypertension medications. The results and ensuing excitement have been very promising.

We partnered with Prolean Corporate Wellness as a key ingredient in our Corporate Risk Management because we both provide real and effective solutions to today's corporate risk and employee health challenges.
